Ronnie Z. Hawkins
Biographical sketch:

I am currently an associate professor of philosophy at the University of Central Florida in Orlando, where I teach courses in environmental ethics, bioethics, philosophy of science, existentialism, and other subjects. I have a degree in medicine (M.D.) as well as a doctorate in philosophy (Ph.D.) from the University of Florida in Gainesville, and I completed a residency in anatomic pathology at Yale. My interest has always been to bring together discourses that understand humans as biological beings, in evolutionary and ecological context, with those that consider humans philosophically but often fail to make contact with the physical and biological dimensions of reality.

Some of my recent publications include:

Seeing Ourselves As Primates. Ethics and the Environment 7 (2002): 60-103.
